Effective November 20, 2020, in accordance with Executive Order 20-99, Higher Education Institutions are required to move to decision-making level red for the next four weeks. This is due to conditions across the state and in our local community and is not reflective of current campus conditions.

SMSU is still committed to having you return to campus for classes after Thanksgiving. Classes that were face to face will remain face to face unless students are notified differently by their faculty. As always, you should stay in communication with your instructors and follow their guidance for attending class and completing assignments. Your health and safety are very important to us before, during and after the Thanksgiving break so we encourage you to be safe and take precautions to protect yourself, your family and friends.

The following conditions are in place for the next four weeks in accordance with Executive Order 20-99:

- Extracurricular activities such as club and organization meetings must be virtual.
- As we have been doing, classes must adhere to social distancing and if they cannot they must have seating assignments.
- To the extent possible cancel performances and if not, masking and social distancing must be strictly adhered to. No audiences are allowed.
- The gymnasiums, fitness center, pool, and weight room will be closed for general use by the public, students, staff and faculty. These facilities can be open for classes and for intercollegiate sports.
- The Mustang Zone will be closed.
- No receptions, such as weddings, milestones, or funerals can be held.
- Residence halls, dining services, the library, student center, and conference rooms for studying will remain open.
- Offices will remain open on campus.
